Notes

What I love most about acting is the ability to immerse myself into a role/character that is different from my normal self. It allows my creative self to arise which allows me to venture into different personas and personalities that I wouldn't get to explore in my everyday life.

I have thoroughly enjoyed the roles I have been a part such as the Bodwell campaign, Burnout Barry etc, as it has allowed me to interact with a wide variety of individuals and showcase my skill set to an even wider audience.

If I was to look to my future in acting, I would like to be the front runner for change within the industry, I want to show people that individuals with a disability can be and have the right to be in this industry and on television playing roles in both television shows and films/movies.

In the future I would also like to partner my acting with modelling as I have a passion and drive to represent people with a disability in the modelling industry also, to show that people with disabilities are a vital part of society and should be represented in the modelling industry.
